ROYAL CHILDREN.

The Six Princes of Germany Are All

The six little princes of Germany are all great athletes. They go through exercises which are calculated to develop and strengthen the muscles and do everything to make them grow into strong men and fine soldiers-which is their father's greatest ambition for their father's greatest ambition for them. The crown prince is a slim blonde boy of 12, who has already entered the army and has his first degree. The youngest boy is 5 years old and is the handsomest of the royal princes. His name is Oscar. Frederick, the second prince, who was named for his much-beloved grandfather, is also a fine-looking boy. The Crown Prince Wilhelm is the plainest and most delicate looking of the royal children. The new baby, Wilhelmina Maria Augusta Leopoldine (and a few other names, too), is a very ordinary looking baby, not half as pretty as young little baby brother or sister. Wilhelmina has very little hair on her round little head, a decided pug nose and a very long and Gaslic upper lip, but at present, being the only young lady in the family, she is the bell of the argust of the real way.

Gastic upper lip, but at present, being the only young lady in the family, she is the belle of the palace.

The young princes all ride, skate, dance and swim well, and so far have occupied very few hours of their days in the school room. They are all rather musical and are very fond of having school room theatricals, as well as visiting the theatre, which means their father's private performances.

ociety Belles Photographed in Antique Costumes.

One of the latest society crazes, says a London correspondent, is an unhealthy fancy which has developed among aristocratic girls for being photographed as undraped classic and pictorial celebrities. Numerous studios are in active work, and are conducted by both male and female operators. Pictures of Andromeda and Aspasia are the favorite subjects, and every girl who has a figure seems burning with a desire to see it presented as an original of these celebrated studies. The photographs get passed around among the girls, their brothers get hold of them, the servants steal them, and ultimately they find thoir way into a photographer's store, labeled the countess of so-and-so, or Lady Blank as so-and-so. There have already been several candals of this kind and some photographs have been bought for their weight in twenty-dollar bill. The mania still goes on apace, work, and are conducted by both male bill. The mania still goes on apace, however, and where no names are given a resultant new amusement is to spot

A little flour dredged over a cake before icing it will keep the icing from apreading and running off. Mrs. Hicks-Lord has a Sevres set that once belonged to the Empress Eugenie. She also has a set which was given to her by the Sultan of Turkey.

For gowns that are cut round in the neck or with broad, square shape, per-mitting the throat to be visible, the favorite finish is a soft fold of black velvet ribbon, really folded, and which brings out the whiteness of the skin.

Fate has decreed that the modern girl must wear the 1830 shoes. If some of the pictures from the wearing of 1830 hose and ahoes, as seen in a newspaper, were to be realized-well, the makers and hosiers who introduced the style would be hurled into eternity, with little time for preparation.

It is considered the proper thing for It is considered the proper thing for every "bud," when domning the evening dress, to pass about her throat three long, thin gold chains. They are carried down the bodice to the waist, and hold, tucked away in the bodice, a quaint, heart-shaped locket, set with turquoise, rubices, sapphires or with cameo ornamentation.

For a bad cut or scratch from a dog or cat one of the speediest remedies to draw out poison and at the same time heal the wound is tobacco. A little published story illustrating the ready tact of Miss Ellen Torry attributes to her a scheme which proved successful. She had promised to introduce a man to Mr. Irving, but had forgotten his name. On the pretext, as the story goes, that she and Mr. Irving had had a dispute about the way the man's name was spelled, making a bet about it, she got him to write it on a slip of paper. Of course that saved her. If Miss Terry did this, she was more fortunate than another clever woman about whom a similar story is told. She. and Whiskey Habits cured at home with cured at home with cured at home with cured at home with the light cured at home with a hour who had forgotten a name, and that also wished to sattle a dispute soil that also wished to sattle a dispute home. Six years ago St. Louis started a so-called Self-Culture Club. Like Hall House it has grown and done good. Its founders have had the satisfaction not only of seeing it removed from a room on the second floor of a small brick building to a three-story house at a prominent corner of the laboring district, but also of sending out branches into other parts of the city. The laboring classes of St. Louis live in two sections of the city, the northeastern and southeastern, and in the heart of both these sections are the buildings of the Self-Culture Club.

Ied-making, sweeping, washing, ironing, cooking and all the other necessary arts of the kitchen are taught every Saturday to all who wish to join the classes. The Girls' Club has its separate evenings for lectures only. With the exception of a few social gatherings these two branches of of the club are kept entirely distinct. The Self-Culture Club is supported chiefly by the Ethical Culture Society. It is a club without creed.

Danger in Perfames

Danger in Perfames.

Women who are fond of indulging in strong periamics should remember that they are decidedly injurious to the sense of smell. By their frequent use the secretory glands of the nose and throat are overtaxed and weakened. One day the person notices that the bearing is less neuto than-usual and the sense of smell seems defective. This is, of course, put down to a cold and but little is thought of it. After a time the entire head becomes affected and there are throat and lung complications which are likely to end in chronic, if not fatal, illness. Smelling saits are a prolific cause of deafness. All strong and pungent oders, particularly those which act upon the secretory processes, should be avoided as far as possible.

How to Be Happy.

How to Be Happy.

Mme. Kurany has come all the way from Syria to toll the women of this country how to be happy like their sisters in the east. "There is one thing the Oriontal women do not have" she says, "and that is receptions. I think they are senseless things, and do not believe half your women would look so worn if they did not have so many of these nuisences to attend. You just go these nuisances to attend. there and smile and bow and tell the people you are glad to see them when you are not. I wish I could get the American women to start the fashion of not having receptions. I believe they would be happier."

When You Write to the Queen,

When You Write to the Queen,
The paper on which letters to Queen
Victoria are written must not be folded.
No communication which bears evidence of having been creased will ever fall into her majesty's own hands. The proper method is to write on thick, glossy white baper and to dispatch the missive in an envelope which fits it.
Anyfolded communication never reaches the queen, for the simple reason that she won't look at it. All such letters are opened by the mistress of the robes, and, as a rule, their contents never get beyond her, or, if the letter is of importance, it is returned to the writer with directions how to forward it.
